

CAPT. CLEMENTS GETS INTO RACE

Louisville Attorney Announces Candidacy for Second District Railroad Commissionership

SELEMAN

Never was there a better illustration of the thoughtlessness of the crowd. Here was a distressed human being. Among the train were other distressed human beings. Great anxiety was apparent; actual misery. Yet the crowd laughed at the predicament of these people and jeered as cruelly as ever the crowd of a Roman circus jeered at the dying victims of the beasts in the arena.

Now, it was not because this crowd was wholly heartless; it was simply because it was thoughtless. There were probprobably a hundred men in the crowd who would have risked their lives to save the man had his life been endangered.

were many present who would have made sacrifices to furnish money to the victims of the hour.

Yet because they were thoughtless, they stood their an' jeered, and added to the misery of the luckless fellow.

But, when you come to think of it, what is the difference between the savage and the civilized man, save thoughtfulness. So it is seen that it requires but the missing of a train by a man to throw the race again into savagery for the time being.—

Nazareth Commencement

Nazareth, Ky., June 13.—Nazareth Academy's annual commencement exercises were the occasion of drawing a concourse of people to the century-old renowned convent school of the South.

For days parents and friends of the pupils have been coming in numbers from Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi and other ed in by the academy's 140 pupils, clad daintily in white, ranging from tots through various ages of lively young girlhood to the "young lady graduates," as the academy's time-honored, dignified term still names them. The magic for this magical

The music for this graceful procession was appropriately the Imperial March by the famous composer, Sir Edward Elgar. It was rendered by the school's orchestra of twenty-nine musicians including violins, harp, piano, cellos, flutes, cornets, grace-

As the other pupils filed off the stage the twelve graduates of 1917 remained for the salutatory. This was delivered by Miss Honor Murphy, of Louisville, who, like many other pupils of the famous school, has been preceded by three generations of her family as Nazareth graduates.

VENERABLE
LAWYER
Passes Away at His Home in This City Sunday

It words of praise coming from sincere hearts are any criterion of his worth in this life, then the late Judge Wm. E. Sealeman, who died Sunday, is without stain for from the array of citizens of the county to the barless youth, all spoke in terms highly commending his honorable and honored life.

Judge Sealeman was born near Hloomfield in Nelson County Mo., April 28, 1843 and was the son of John P. and Lucy McKay Sealeman.

His grandfather, Henry Sealeman, emigrated from Virginia to Kentucky in 1819 and located in Nelson county. Wm. McKay his maternal grandfather emigrated from Virginia in 1788.
After being admitted to the bar in 1868 he came to Springfield and practiced his profession until his death.

In 1870 he was elected County Attorney for Washington County and served four years. In 1882 he was elected County Judge and served with distinction.

Shortly after commencing the practice of law he was united in marriage to Miss Sallie Robertson, to which union three children were born, two of whom with his wife survive.

Mr. Sealeman took a lively interest in church affairs and was for years President of the Springfield Baptist Sunday School Class. Mr. Sealeman was a gentle man at all times and places and on all occasions, and dignified in his bearing toward the lowest as well as toward the highest. In his home he was hospitable to all and turned no one by his door. In his family life he was happy and had toward each child an affectional and tender heart. He made his children his companions and took an interest in all that concerned them.

A characteristic of the Judge which more than any other one of his many virtues was his fondness for young people and his efforts to aid them to advance, especially can this be observed by the younger members of the Springfield bar. And no young lawyer who was earnestly trying to rise in his profession can say that Judge Sealeman ever threw a stone in his path. On the contrary his advice was freely given to them all and any words of encouragement that he gave abounded in the very heart of which they were given they came from a heart yearning to do good.
While he was fearless in the discharge of his duty and used every honorable means to protect his client's interests. He never debased his profession by stooping to any sordid means, and abhorred the lawyer who would resort to trickery and chicanery to win his case. He realized that he belonged to a profession that had an ethical side and he never forgot to uphold its dignity and was always found courteous to the very meanest of the bar.

In all his life both public and private he lived a consistent Christian life. He was a man who not only had his ideals but lived up to them. He did not draw his standard of right and wrong and expect every other man to measure up to it, but endeavored to live his own life as he felt it ought to be lived. He had his convictions and was fearless in advocating them although in his amiable way without offense to any one.

His life will be kept in honored remembrance and now when the closing chapter of his noble life has been completed one and all can truly say "This was a man."

At a meeting of the Springfield bar held at the Court House in Springfield, Ky., June 19th, 1911, there were present Judge J. H.
Thurman, John W. Lewis, W. C.
McChord, W. F. Crigsby, W. C.
McChord, Marshall Duncan, Joe Polin and John Polin and officers of the Court and County officials.
On motion resolved that Judge J. H.
Thurman act as Chairman and Marshall Duncan Secretary.

The chairman announced that the meeting was called for the purpose of taking such action as the members of the bar might deem appropriate concerning the death of Judge William E. Sealeman, who died Sunday June 18th, 1911, at seven o'clock a.m.

On motion resolved that the chairman appoint a committee on resolutions that the sentiments of those who have been the intimate associates of Judge Sealeman might be appropriately expressed.
The chairman appointed the following committee: John W. Lewis, W. C.
McChord and T. Scott Mayes, who after a time reported and moved the adoption of the following preamble and resolutions:

Memorial Service
On next Sunday afternoon at four o'clock a memorial service for the loved and lamented Judge W. E. Sealeman will be held at the Baptist church. The following brief addresses will be delivered: "As a fellow member of the bar," Mr. John W. Lewis.
"As a Christian in the town," Rev.
R. E. C. Lawson, "As a Yoke-fellow through the years" Mr.
Taylor Spence, "As his father knew him," Rev. W. H. Williams.

"Seldom has an event of the kind caused such general sorrow in this county as the death of Judge William E. Sealeman who died at his residence in Springfield, Ky., on Sunday morning June 18th, 1911, at seven o'clock.
Sensible of the great loss sustained by the community and ourselves, his colleagues at the bar and the officers of the Court, we bear testimony to his worth as a citizen and in his profession. He was an able, earnest and faithful lawyer, a safe and honorable counselor, a generous and true friend. He leaves to his family the best of his heritage, a stainless name and a career utterly without reproach. He was always modest, retiring and unobtrusive, avoiding ostentation, but fearless when duty called, and his convictions demanded action. In a word, for correctness and purity of life his career is unique.
There is nothing connected with it that is not noble and good, and the example of that life must ever exert, in the community where he lived so long a wholesome and elevating influence. He has gone to his reward. We ask that this sincere tribute to his memory be spread upon the records of the Circuit and County Court of Washington county, that an attested copy of it be furnished his family, with assurance of our tenderest and lasting sympathy and deep sense of the great loss we have sustained in common with them. As a further testimonial of our esteem and respect for Judge Sealeman who so honorably and usefully served the people of this county as County Attorney and Judge of the County Court, by election of the people, it is our purpose to procure a portrait of him and request the County Court to allow us to suspend it in the Court House, and as a further mark of respect we his colleagues will attend the funeral in a body.

A Good Woman Dead
The death of Mrs. Sarah E.
Grundy which occurred at Valley Hill on last Tuesday morning breaks the circle in a large family of brothers and sisters, here being the first death to occur in this large family.
Mrs. Grundy was the second child of the late Anthony and Ann Garland McElroy and was born in Springfield on the 20th day of January 1828. At that time Springfield was a very small place and Mrs. Grundy saw it grow from what it then was to what it is now.

On December 21st 1852 she was married to Palmer Grundy, who with the following children survives Mrs. May E. Hundley and Mrs. J. Y. Mayes and Messrs.
C. R. T. A. and H. W. Grundy.
Mrs. Grundy was a devoted and affectionate wife and mother and will be kindly remembered by many friends as a good neighbor and a good Christian woman with high ideals and who lived on upright life, being a worthy model for her children.

In addition to her husband and children she is survived by the following brothers and sisters, Mrs. Mary R. Hughes of Bloomfield, Mrs. Nicholas McDowell and Mrs. Mattie McDowell of Danville, Mrs. Emmet Field of Gouvilleville and Messrs. Hugh Mc-Elroy of Kansas City, Mo., R. R., A. C. W. T. and John L. McElroy of this place.

The funeral services occurred from the Presbyterian Church yesterday and the remains were laid to rest in Cemetery Hill. The many floral designs attested the esteem in which she was held.

Noonan.
Mrs. Nannie Noonan died at her home in Bardonia Saturday, of heart disease. Mrs.
Noonan is well remembered here being the widow of the late Matthew Noonan, who died a few years ago. Prior to her marriage she was a Miss Logsdon and was about 60 years of age at the time of her death. She was married to Mr. Matthew Noonan when quite young and they resided in the Fowick neighborhood until a few years prior to his death when they moved to Bardonia, Ky.

Mrs. Noonan was a most excellent Christian woman and stood ever ready to extend a helping hand to those in distress.
As we knew her no night was too dark or weather too cold for her to go on her missions of Christian charity to the bedside of the sick or dying, to alleviate the sufferings of the afflicted or to minister unto the dying or to extend consolation to the bereaved.
A life filled with such acts as these must surely have its reward in reward in life to come.
